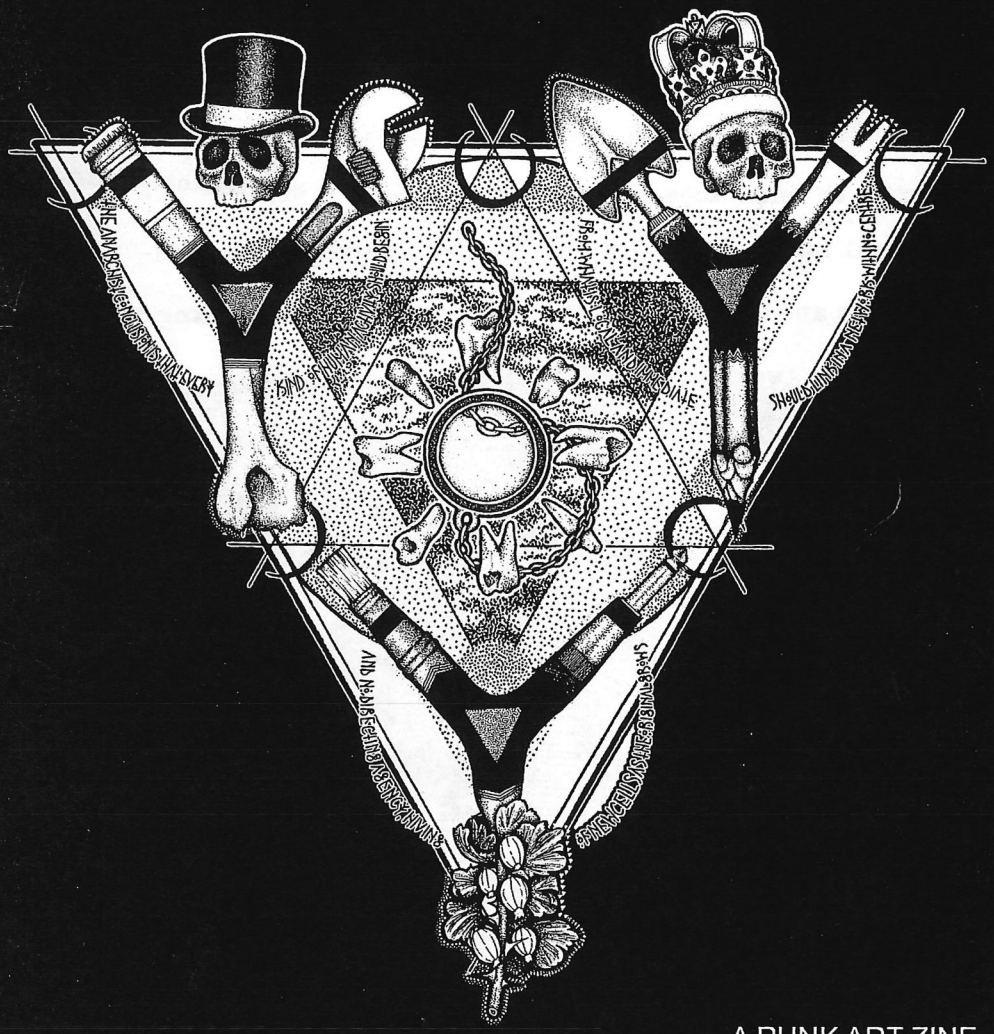
CREATE // RESIST



A PUNK ART ZINE
VOLUME ONE

We wanted to start CREATE//RESIST for many reasons, the main one being that we felt a need to showcase and appreciate the visual art coming out of punk subculture around the world. We feel that visual artwork has an important role to play within the scene and that it should go hand in hand with the music. The art featured in this zine carries many different ideas, concepts and political statements, all of which are reflected in punk music. For us this collection of artwork has themes of unemployment, consumerism, state oppression, media control and DIY ethics as well as being anti-police, anti-racist and anti-homophobic. Each artist has something to say about the world around them, whether the statement is subtle or made obvious.

Another key reason for starting CREATE//RESIST is to build networks between artists in punk and to bring them together to share ideas, techniques and to support each other. We feel that this zine has the potential to grow into an underground art collective, which could exist and function in many different ways. For example it could develop into a loose art collective that exists on the internet, keeping it international and varied. We hope to make CREATE//RESIST a platform for artists to form a collective. This is the first of many zines, it will develop as times goes on and more people get involved. We have chosen to keep number one predominately visual, with little written text, which makes sense for an art zine. But future issues may feature more articles, interviews and theory. We have put all the artists contact details in the back so if you would like to contact them that would be great. Also if you make artwork yourself and would like to get involved the contact details are also at the back.

Enjoy the zine, support the artists and look out for more to come!

Legend has it that the Fomoire were half human with one demonic eye and fish like scales. Some with one arm and some with one leg. Others with a human body and the head of a goat.
Their silent shadows came from dark waters circling their prey. Mutilating and decapitating tribes, leaving them lying in their own entrails.
This was a time when Gods walked among men. And these were the Gods of chaos and wild nature.

Fomoire, Balor of The Evil Eye

Punctured animal patterns and symbols protect these warriors. They wear no clothing in battle, lest they should hide the figures on their bodies which give them protection from death. To their foes blood thirsty animal-like figures run at their prey. Letting out wild inhuman hissing and shrieks as they attack. Fomoire women and men kill in bands of their own. Instilling fear and confusion into the tribes of the mainland, some fall to their knees and watch as the darkness unfolds.

Spoils are food, severed heads and human captives for slaves. The heads hold great significance for identity and status. By displaying the skull and bones close to their home the clan are protected and send a clear warning to other tribes.

Freedom, morality, and the human dignity of the individual consists precisely in this; that he does good not because he is forced to do so, but because he freely conceives it, wants it, and loves it.
